In such cases the required licence is to be applied for within a month following the issue of the provisional licence. If the licence is refused, the applicant may be granted reasonable compensation, with section 9 of this Act being applied mutatis mutandis, if the refusal of compensation would be unreasonably severe in view of the need to protect confidence in the former legal situation.

  1. Where, before the date when accession takes effect, state orders have been placed for 1990 for the production of war weapons or for their export to or import from Member States of the Warsaw Treaty, the acts necessary to carry out those orders and requiring a licence under sections 2 or 3 of this Act shall be deemed to have been licensed.
  2. In the case of orders under item 1 above concerning states that are not members of the Warsaw Treaty, acts which require a licence but cannot be deferred may be provisionally licensed; the second and third sentences of paragraph 1 above shall apply mutatis mutandis.
- (3) In the event that the German Democratic Republic passes a law to put this Act into effect, the Federal Ministry of Economics and Technology is authorised to modify, by statutory order not requiring the consent of the Federal Council, the provisions of paragraphs 1 and 2 above and of section 26a of this Act in such a way that their purposes are achieved in the light of the new legal situation.
